

Question:

Were your estimates too conservative, or too optimistic?

Answer:

Yes I believe I was too optimistic when making my original time sheet, between classes and every day life I fell behind on the things that I was able to do in terms of the modeling and some of the designs. Aswell as information being updated and such in team meetings and in delegations through Trello.

Question:

What does this show off about your skills / what do you like about this asset?

Answer:

I like the work I've done in terms of the documentation for the work I've done as well as developing the stickers and how I was able to add somethings to pre-existing things that other members have had done, such as the notebook and working on the models and such have been great. I think what it shows about my work is my ability to be able to take on information and be able to adjust accordingly to the feedback I receive.

Question:

Try to dig a little bit into your own thought process if possible. What motivates you?

Answer:

I think what motivates me is a few key things. I have always been fascinated with the idea of cryptids so this project truly speaks to me, I've always wanted to make videogames since I was young so this helps me to keep going as well. The final thing would be just being there for the team, I want to make sure I don't hold them or myself back.
